CONGRESS WANTS PARTICULARS AS TO UNITED STATES MOVEMENTS IN NICARAGUA.

Rebels Get Worst of The Fighting With Federals In Battle Which Started On Sunday Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, August 21.—Senator Bacon today asked the senate to authorize its committee now investigating the charge that recent revolutions in Cuba and Mexico had been promoted by Americans, to report upon what authority United States forces had been landed in Nicaragua. A resolution to that effect was referred to a committee to report upon the probable expense.

More Vessels Needed. In addition to the marines and blue jackets ashore in Nicaragua from the three American war vessels the Annapolis, the Tacoma and the Justine, American minister Weitzel has asked for details at Corinto and at San Juan del Sur, both on the west coast.

To Open Ports. It is necessary to hold these ports in order that cable communication may be maintained between the cable station and the American legation at Managua.

Vessels Rushed. The gun boat Delmyer under rush orders should arrive at Corinto Sunday. She will land about 150 blue jackets bringing the total of the American shore up to 700 men. This force could be increased if the conflict between the factions in Nicaragua continued, by a draft of marines from Mare Island Navy Yard.

All Is Ready. Complete arrangements to throw a force of 2,000 blue jackets and marines into Nicaragua within ten days to protect American lives and property and keep a railway communication open from the American legation in Managua to the Pacific coast were made today by the navy department.

Are to Sail. Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—Eight hundred marines will sail from the Philadelphia navy yard next Saturday for Nicaragua. Orders directing the move were received at the navy yard this afternoon from Washington.

Rush Orders. Washington, Aug. 21.—Secretary Meyer today issued rush orders for the big armored cruiser California to San Diego, Cal., to proceed to Panama. Meanwhile the transport Prairie has been ordered from the Portsmouth, New Hampshire, navy yard to Philadelphia to take aboard 750 marines and sail on to Colon.

Ready to Act. This force will be sent over the Panama railroad to Panama and taken on board the cruiser California and rushed northward to San Juan del Sur and Corinto.

Pierce Fighting. Corinto, Nicaragua, Aug. 20. (Delayed in transmission).—Fighting between the Nicaragua government forces and the revolutionaries at Chinandega about 10 miles from this port has been almost continuous since Sunday. The town was turned over to the rebels Sunday by the government troops and all communication both by telegram and railway between the coast and the capital was cut.

Rebels Defeated. The government troops today defeated the rebels and recaptured the town. It is reported here the government forces are gaining strength both at Leon and Managua and they have received reinforcements at Granada on Lake Nicaragua.

MUST PROVE MARRIAGE TO SECURE PROPERTY

[SPECIAL DELIVERY.] Racine, Aug. 21.—Richard S. McConnell, of the firm of McConnell and Giles, court reporters of Chicago, was in the city this morning making an effort to find records that will prove the marriage of Elias Edward Giles and Rose Hess in Racine, Feb. 21, 1912, and which looks as if it was a fake marriage. Miss Hess alleges that on February 21, 1912, she and Mr. Giles came to Racine and were married supposedly by a justice of the peace. Mr. Giles died suddenly last week shortly after returning from a western trip. The deceased left considerable real and personal property and in order to get this the wife must prove her marriage.

VETERAN STEEL KING AGED NINETY YEARS

John Fritz, Far Famed As Father of the Steel Industry, Observes Birthday Anniversary.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 21.—John Fritz, known far and wide as the father of the steel industry in the United States, attained his ninetieth birthday anniversary today. The dinner given at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York ten years ago in celebration of the eightieth birthday of Mr. Fritz is still remembered as one of the most remarkable gatherings ever assembled in this country of captains of invention and industry and the central figures of finance allied with the iron trade.

It was hoped that some similar affair might be held to commemorate Mr. Fritz's ninetieth year, but the precarious condition of his health caused the idea to be abandoned. For the past six months the veteran iron-master has been in very poor health and during much of the time has been bedfast. During this time messages of inquiry and cheer have been received at his home almost daily from leading men in the iron and steel world, from Andrew Carnegie down to the active present day plant managers, many of whom in years past were numbered among Mr. Fritz's "boys."

John Fritz long ago earned his title of father of the steel industry not by any single invention or discovery, but by a contribution of new devices, new methods and practical work in building up the industry in the United States. With only a district school education, gained near his birthplace in the middle part of Pennsylvania, he gained a position in the steel industry that has been recognized by the whole world.

At the age of 16 Mr. Fritz left his father's farm to work in a country machine shop, with a view of learning the trade of a machinist. After various experiments in steel-making at Norristown and Safe Harbor, he went to Johnstown, where he remodeled an old mill and built what is now known as the Cambria Iron Works. It was at this period that, in connection with his brother George, he designed and erected the well known "three high bloomers," with their automatic tables and the "three high mill." These inventions started an economical revolution in steel manufacture.

When the United States government, some twenty-five years ago, decided to build a modern navy of armor-plated vessels equipped with guns of great calibre, there was no plant in the country where the plates, guns and forgings for such ships could be made. Bethlehem was selected as the site for the projected plant and Mr. Fritz was chosen as the man to build it. He went to Europe and spent some months in studying the plate and gun making plants there, and when he returned he built a plant that surpassed its European models. Among other features it contained the greatest hammer and the most powerful press in the world. When Mr. Fritz built this, the first armor plant in America, such men as Schwab, Corey and others who subsequently became famous in the steel industry, were still boys.

Mr. Fritz is the only man now living of the small group that introduced into the United States the Bessemer steel process. A great economical revolution was thus effected, from which has followed the tremendous development seen today in steel manufacture in the United States. In 1893 the British Iron and Steel Institute gave Mr. Fritz the Bessemer gold medal, which is the highest distinction a steel-maker can receive.

What One Dressmaker Thinks

The following is a communication from one of the local dressmakers. It is in response to the query, "How to find a dressmaker."

"As a rule the best dressmakers are too busy to advertise and would suggest that the ladies who desire the services of a first class dressmaker might be able to obtain help by inserting a want ad, giving their name and address. SHIP WHICH STRUCK ICEBERG IN HARBOR

Allan Line Vessel Corsican Which Was in Collision August 12, Arrives Safely in Liverpool.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Liverpool, August 21.—The Allan steamship Corsican which struck an iceberg east of Belle Island near Newfoundland on the afternoon of August 12th on her voyage from Montreal to this port arrived this morning. The forepart of the vessel was protected by collision bulkheads. Otherwise she showed no signs of damage. Captain Cook, commander of the Corsican, said the weather was hazy when the Corsican collided with the iceberg on August 12th. She was traveling at dead slow speed when the iceberg was sighted right ahead. The engine was immediately put to stone, but the Corsican cut into the iceberg before she could be stopped. She suffered no damage below ten feet of the water line. The crew was at once called to stations and the boats swung out, but were soon taken back again. All the water tight doors were at once lowered. The weather continued foggy for four days after the collision, but the ship was able to proceed at moderate speed.

Most of the passengers of the Corsican say there was no panic on board at the time of the collision. Two Cambridge students named Bethel and Stevens, however, say they were almost thrown out of their bunks by the violence of the impact.

They also assert that a number of the passengers were panic-stricken and that one woman called on everybody to kneel and pray. The students assert that one hundred tons of ice fell on the ship's decks and there was nineteen feet of water in the hold last Sunday.

The crew, they said, were unable to sleep in the forecastle after the collision. Several of the passengers had narrow escapes.

Stevens continued: "Several Italians on board were seized with panic, grabbed their bags and jumped into the boats. If we had taken to the boats there would have been no chance of being picked up as the fog bank was said to be one hundred miles wide. As a matter of fact we did not sight a boat for two days."

The captain asserts that the Corsican did not ship any water. The passengers held a meeting today and presented Captain Cook with a gold watch and a purse of gold.

JOHN DOE INQUIRY WILL BE CONDUCTED

Preliminary Investigation Before Actual Trial of Indicted Men Is Begun.

New York, Aug. 21.—A John Doe, police graft inquiry is to be undertaken several weeks before the calling of the trials of those indicted for the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal.

The preliminary proceedings before supreme court justice Gott are expected to strengthen the case against Lieut. Becker and the six others indicted yesterday for the Rosenthal killing by unearthing new evidence of police corruption.

The John Doe inquiry will cease during the murder trial, but will be resumed after they are concluded.

Police Lieut. Becker and those indicted yesterday will be called to plead in court tomorrow. The grand jury will be asked to consider the testimony of "Big Jack" Zelig, who told of his arrest by two members of Lieut. Becker's "strong arm" squad. These two detectives swore they found a revolver on Zelig. Five witnesses testified before the grand jury that Zelig did not have a revolver when arrested.

The grand jury may indict the two detectives for oppression and perjury. These men will be accused of placing a weapon in Zelig's pocket so as to make it appear he was carrying concealed weapons.

Schepps can only be held a short time on the vagrant charge, but as his counsel says, Schepps feels it is safe to remain in the custody of the district attorney until he has given his testimony in the trial. Schepps, however, demands that he be taken care of in a first class hotel and his demand will be granted.

TAFT VETOED BILL WHICH ABOLISHED COMMERCE COURT

Refuses to Sign Measure Which Would Do Away With This Special Branch of Judiciary.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 21.—President Taft today again vetoed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill because it still carried an amendment to abolish the commerce court which the house and senate insisted upon including in the reframed measure.

The provision to limit tenure of office of civil service employees to seven years which was an additional reason for the president's first disapproval had not been included in the bill a second time. After the message had been read democratic leaders prepared to toss it over President Taft's veto a second time.

Representative Underwood declared however, that if the senate refused again to override the president's veto the house finally would agree to recede from its provision to abolish the commerce court and permit an adjournment probably on Saturday. The president returned the twice vetoed bill with a short message saying he disapproved it on the same grounds as he had set out at length in his message last week. Among the leaders there was doubt that the executive disapproval could be overridden in the senate.

Within one hour after President Taft had for the second time vetoed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill because it carried a provision to abolish the commerce court, the house today repassed it 154 to 83 over his veto. It now goes to the senate.

The legislative appropriation bill failed of repassage in the senate over President Taft's veto. The motion to re-pass the measure received 34 votes to 27 in the negative, but the two thirds necessary to override the veto was 41.

Senator Pomeroy's bill providing a uniform system of bills of lading regulating the transfer of such bills was passed by the senate today after a brief debate without a dissenting vote.

USING MAIL SACKS TO SMUGGLE OPIUM

Custom House Officials at Pacific Ports Make Astonishing Discovery.—Plan Investigation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Honolulu, Aug. 21.—Smugglers of opium in their efforts to circumvent the custom house officials at American ports have been using mail bags as carriers of the contraband drug. Discovery of mail bags taken by the smugglers was made some time ago, but has been kept secret while an investigation was under way. On the steamship Manchuria, which arrived at Honolulu from the Orient on Aug. 8th, a mail bag was found which instead of containing letters was stuffed with $5,000 worth of opium. Either the mail bags have long been used illicitly for the purpose of carrying opium by coalition between the postal employees in the oriental ports and here, or the bags had been opened on board the Manchuria and the mail destroyed during the voyage and the pins of opium substituted. It is believed that there will be an investigation to all of the ports at which the steamship will call. District Attorney General Goggan went from here to Japan and it is said his mission is to extend the investigation to Japanese ports.

A Little Talk on Vaudeville and Feature Films

The average performer in vaudeville in a city like Janesville receives about $5 per day for his work. Out of this he must pay railroad fare, hotel bills and minor items that reduce his net income to half the amount. What kind of performers can you expect to work at this price? Do you wonder that half of them are disappointing? Yet experience has shown that the business will not warrant higher salaries, or managers would be glad to pay more and get better acts. On the other hand there has been such an increase in the production of feature films like the "101" Bison, "Cinderella," "Zigomar," "Jess," etc., that the time is here when a manager can, without increasing his expense, substitute film productions that are really great, for vaudeville acts that are generally more or less disappointing often. For fifteen or twenty dollars a night he can either hire an ordinary vaudeville bill, or he can rent a set of films that cost a fortune to produce. "Which shall he do?" is the question. "What do most people want?" and can be definitely answered only by trial.

Therefore to find whether the public prefers it to vaudeville, this newest development in entertainment will be tried at the Royal Theatre. For four weeks, beginning Friday, August 30, remember

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE TO SHOW DECREASE

Census Completed by Clerk of School Board Shows Smaller Number of School Children in City.

Indications from the school census which has just been completed by clerk of the school board, S. C. Burnham, are that the attendance at the city schools this fall will be about 233 pupils less than in 1911. The total number of children of the school age in Janesville this year is 3,737 against 4,000 last year.

This decrease is not alarming in view of the fact that a decrease is reported over the entire country according to a recent report of the United States Bureau of Education. In Janesville the number fluctuates from year to year and in the past there has been even larger differences between two successive years.

In view of the fact that the decrease in the number of school children has been general, there will probably be little difference in the amount of school money which the city will receive from the state.

When school opens September 3 there will be 21 more girls enrolled than boys if all the children included in the school census attend. The total number of boys is 1,853 and of girls, 1,979. According to ages the census is as follows: 4 years, 242; 5 years, 241; 6 years, 255; 7 years, 273; 8 years, 277; 9 years, 253; 10 years, 262; 11 years, 272; 12 years, 264; 13 years, 263; 14 years, 232; 15 years, 206; 16 years, 234; 17 years, 204; 18 years, 130; 19 years, 179.

Entertainment This Evening Will Be Last of Three Days' Shows Given By First Ward Youngsters.

With tonight's entertainment, the First Ward carnival, which has been holding forth in the vacant lot on the Palmer property on Madison street near the intersection of West Bluff street, will come to a close. The show has been a most successful one, under the management of Everett Harper and Marjorie Russell, and the youthful players hope with the proceeds of this evening's entertainment to add considerable more to the amount already secured for the playground fund. The receipts last evening were five dollars. The performances this evening will be the big feature of the three days' carnival, which opened on Monday.

Some new acts have been secured in addition to those already shown, and the managers are looking forward to a large attendance. The shows are given in low tents, one large one for the main show, and a smaller one where the fat man and the natural living wonders of the world are housed. In addition there are two dressing tents for the performers and a tent where popcorn, candy and soft drinks are dispensed.

The main show comprises a variety of acts. There is Mezeppa II, the wonderful little performing horse, owned by Jerome Sheridan, which was especially trained for this exhibition and is in charge of Prof. Lash. Charles Garbutt, in addition to this there are Indian and Japanese girl players and vaudeville artists.

The children who are taking part in the presentation of the carnival are: Edward Allen and James Watters, policemen on the grounds; George McCue, clown; Charles Garbutt, Prof. Lash; Leg Powers, clown; Misses Marion Hanson and Rosemary O'Brien, and Jerome Sheridan, and Master Franklin, Indians; Misses Mania Powers, Rosemary O'Brien, Marion Hanson and Dorothy Palmer, Japanese girls; Nelson Horn, fat man; Maurice Russell, strong man. The stand is in charge of Willard Croak, Charles Heinz, Master Croak and Herbert Allen. The management announces that there will be a snake character as an extra special feature this evening, but are unable to state just who will take the part.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Editor Gazette:

It was about one year ago, as we all remember well, that the curb and gutter was put in on North Pearl street, from Bluff to Ravine. It seems the curb was built on each side the street to protect the taxpayer from venturing outside or into the middle of the street. No need for cilling, no need to pave, no need to macadamize, and no use to asphalt, for here we are from dust set free. In addition to this we have an over-abundance of moisture at nearly all times. And a farmer would do right well to start with a plow and drag and a dump cart for he at least could raise something that would make the street higher.

When we look to the north, south east and the west, the streets have been fixed up in the very best shape. We have read and heard of waves hot and cold, and the clamorous clamor of the city beautiful, and strange say we are centrally located where the good work of repairing the streets has been going on. The cold waves still seems to hang around. And to all our friends around us in the city beautiful that haven't been so fortunate as we are to have things soft and easy under foot, we give you a very cordial invitation to come and get a birds-eye view of this mirage. But we insist that you do not attempt to come this way only by daylight or when the moon shines in its glory as the light is very limited in this block—and light in the middle of the block—and might get entangled or swamped in the mire.

Editor Gazette:

Another automobile accident is again noted in the evening paper. And again the driver of the car is only 17 years of age. Is there a law compelling drivers to be of age before attempting to drive a car? If so, why not severely enforce it in Janesville? So that men, women and children can feel free on the streets of our city instead of having to run across the street like a rabbit, or cross all doubled up fearing your life. If you are a brave soldier and think of nothing save the way you are going and the errand you are on—your thoughts are molested by the loud toot of an automobile horn. You almost jump out of your clothes to clear the track for a gossiping school girl autoist, taking her friends out for a ride. She has been busy listening to a "lingo" of gossip and has not seen you until the last moment, so it's her place to toot the horn and your place to jump. Oh! wasn't that the way? Oh! I forgot it was a hatless young fellow rapping through the air on a joy ride exhibiting one of the largest cars in the country—toot, toot, toot—"Get off the earth"—can't you hear?—can't you see—haven't you time?—then get bumped.

If there isn't a law that every driver of an automobile should be 21 years of age before being allowed to drive a car—can't we make one for Janesville? Twenty-one? Oh! that's nonsense, cause our Bobby is only 15 years old and he is as good a driver as any one else. No, certainly not. I don't think an accident ever happened intentionally. But Bobby is a youth, and no youth, no matter how wise and intelligent, can not be held in check because there is that comprehension and realization to be learned which only years, on their shoulders can teach them—and we should not have to be at the mercy of such unnecessary danger.

This isn't written by a pessimistic pedestrian, but by one who owns a car and is as fond of automobilizing as any one can be.

Exponent of Economy.
A widely known Republican was asked if he was for a certain candidate for governor, and he answered: "No; I don't want to waste him. The situation is like an event in a Dublin theater. Some fellow had made a disturbance in the gallery, and the cry was raised 'Throw him over! Throw him over!' Thereupon a solemn-looking man rose from his seat and impressively shouted: 'Hold on! Don't waste him! Kill a fiddler with him!'"—Everybody's Magazine.

A Catastrophe.
A woman in one of the wards in the Rhode Island hospital was informed she had appendicitis, and would have to be operated on at once. Much frightened, she reluctantly consented and was conveyed to the operating room. One of the doctors had commenced to administer the ether and her eyes were closing languidly, when he discovered he had forgotten to inquire if she had false teeth. He quickly removed the rubber cap, and shaking her slightly, he said: "Have you anything loose in your mouth?" Then, as he made a move to put his hand in her mouth, she opened her eyes wildly and exclaimed: "Nothing but my tongue, doctor, and for God's sake don't cut that out, too!"—National Monthly.

Matter of Skill.

"Does your wife ever object when you find it necessary to stay down town late at night?" "Oh, no, she knows that I never stay away from home in the evening unless it is a matter of business that keeps me. Does your wife make a fuss when you get home late?" "Always, I congratulate you." "Thanks, old man. Yes, I think I'm to be congratulated. My wife's a mighty sensible little woman, even if she isn't as beautiful as some who could be mentioned. Give me an unfatigable, reasonable woman rather than a pretty one, who can't listen to reason." "It isn't the amiability of your wife that causes me to offer my congratulations." "No? What, then?" "Your ability as a liar."

Flowers in a Bedroom.

Opinions differ as to the feasibility of having plants in a bedroom. However, almost all authorities agree that plants and trees, through their leaves, absorb obnoxious gases and give off oxygen, and that plants require a gas called carbonic-acid to promote a rank, luxuriant growth. The gas thus breathed by the plants is poisonous to air-breathing animals, including man, and as it is also given out in the breathing of animals it is poisonous to be re-breathed; but the plants, thrive on it. This being the case the decision would be in favor of having the plants in the room to absorb the poisonous exhalations.

A statement has been given out at the office of Gov. Marshall in Indianapolis that the governor's former policy will prevail in the matter of the attempt of the Mineral Springs Jockey club to conduct a race meet without gambling at new Porter track. In similar instances the meets always have been prevented by the governor when it formally was brought to his attention that such a meet was contemplated. No official information of the intended meet had yet been sent to the governor.

After more sparring about than will happen in the actual match, Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland really and truly agreed to meet each other in New York September 27, before Billy Gibson's Madison Square Athletic club. Emil Thiry, after closing all the details for the encounter, said:

"Wolgast will get for his end of the ten-round bout 51 per cent of the pictures and $5,500, or $22,500 flat, as he pleases. The remainder of the 40 percent picture money will be split even between the backers and promoters. Along with this Packey will get 30 per cent of the gate money."

"We had less trouble in arranging the weight proposition than I expected and Ad, after a brief argument declared he was willing to let Packey come in at 135 at 3 o'clock. The only thing that the champion insisted upon was that the match be set for a Friday. He said Packey wouldn't be such a tough customer, as he could not eat meat on that day."

"Umpiring from the inside," as told by Billy Evans, runs this way:

A kick on a close play in the hope that it will influence the umpire on the next close one brings that result once in 5,000 times.

Connie Mack kept tab of the close plays in favor and against his team for five years and found a difference of only five close decisions.

Lajoie and Cobb have never kicked to Evans.

These are the ones who make umpiring tough: 1.—Managers who believe they can bulldoze umpires. 2.—Veterans who are slipping. 3.—Youngsters anxious to make good. 4.—Players who make bad breaks and blame the umpire as an alibi.

A star catcher was released two years before his career should have ended, by kicking, which took his attention from the game.

The Washington team is likely to have less help from its pair of comedians, Germany Schaefer and Nick Altrock and their sidekick antics through the rest of the season. It has leaked out that San Johnson believes the twin comedians with the Nationals are carrying the thing too far. Johnson has given Griffith to understand that too much comedy will not be tolerated and that Schaefer and Altrock must curtail their funny business.

Griffith is naturally displeased with this ban and has appealed to Johnson to rule how far the coaches may go. He contends that this line of comedy is pleasing to the fans and that it is a big factor in attracting crowds. Johnson, however, thinks that people who want comedy and vaudeville may get it in the theaters, and that fans who go to see baseball get their money's worth out of the game.

NEWARK GIANTS WILL PLAY DOUBLE HEADER SUNDAY.

Next Sunday afternoon the Newark Giants will play a double header at their grounds. The first game will be played with the strong Beloit Ironsides and a very good game is expected as the Line City team is one of the best in that city. In the second game the Broadhead Cubs will try conclusions with the Giants. The Cubs are talked of by some of the fans as one of the fastest teams in the southern section of the state. The Giants are playing very good ball this season and expect to win both games.

UNION GIANTS WIN GAME AT FOOTVILLE

Footville White Sox are Losers in Contest Witnessed by 700 Fans Yesterday Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Footville, Aug. 21.—Seven hundred baseball fans witnessed a fast game between the Union Giants of Chicago and the Footville White Sox on the local diamond yesterday afternoon. The local players made a fine showing but were unable to win, the score being 7 to 5 in favor of the colored men. It was one of the most interesting games of the season thus far. The batteries were Jinkins and Gordon for the Giants, and Killy and Silverthorne for the Footville team. The big game of the season is scheduled for next Saturday afternoon when the White Sox will meet the Monroe team here.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Birdie Cree is the only regular among the New York Highlanders that is hitting for 300 or better. Joan Dubuc is the leading pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, having won fifteen of his first twenty games. Twenty-eight players in the National League and twenty-two in the American league are batting in the .300 class. A brother of Johnny Evers of the Cubs, is to receive a try-out from Manager McGraw of the Giants next spring. A Boston fan rolled over and yelled "If Boston is the Hub of the Universe, Speaker is the greatest spoke" in the wheel.

Doerrill Pratt, the Southern League recruit, is playing a sensational game both in the field and at bat for the St. Louis Browns. Manager Jimmy Callahan has added two promising youngsters, Catcher Ray Schaik and Pitcher Ralph Crabbe, to his White Horse outfit.

The Cleveland Naps have been coming along strong of late, and it's a pretty safe bet that the Davis outfit will finish in the first division. The Boston Braves had a chance to sign Eppa Rixey, but couldn't see him and the Quakers jumped in and signed the University of Virginia star.

Bob Beschler of the Cincinnati Reds is the "Speed King" of the National League. Bob leads the organization both in run getting and base stealing.

Joe Kelley's Toronto team has come to the front on the run and is giving Rochester and Baltimore a real battle for the International League pennant.

The Pirates and the Cubs did great work during their eastern trip and if they can keep up the pace at home, the Giants will have to go some to hold their own. Boston and Washington ran neck and neck during their western trip. The Red Sox won ten games, lost five and tied one, while the Senators topped ten contests and lost six.

One noticeable feature of the American League race is the fact that very few fans throughout the country would begrudge the Senators a pennant. Washington never has had anything that resembled a championship, and the majority of the fans are pulling for "Old Fox" Griffith's boys to win.

WITH THE BOXERS.

Rawhide Kelly, manager of Frank Picato, is trying to match Picato against Natty Baldwin.

Tommy O'Toole's next bout will be a clash with Tommy Dixon in Philadelphia on Sept. 20.

The Garden A. C. of New York would like to stake a ten-round bout between Champion Kilbane and Johnny Dundee.

Mike Gibbons' young brother, Tommy, who is said to be a clever middleweight, is going to break into the boxing game next month.

Things Get Better.

In spite of all the confusions and thwartings of life, the habits and resiliences and the counterstrokes of fate, it is manifest that, in the long run, human life becomes broader than it was, gentler than it was, finer and deeper. One the whole—and nowadays almost steadily—things get better. This is a secular amelioration of life, and it is brought about by good will working through the efforts of men.—H. G. Wells.

OUT OF ATHLETICS INTO BUSINESS

Tel Berna.

Tel Berna, of Cornell, American two-mile record-holder, says he has hung up his spiked shoes for all time and will go into business. He graduated before he made the Olympic trip. Berna was not in the best trim at the Olympic games, and was somewhat of a disappointment to the Americans. He figured little in the distance events, but helped America win the team race. He will be missed at Cornell.

Marks Historic Spot.

Some 20 years ago Professor Patrick Geddes made the suggestion that a memorial should be erected on the Esplanade of Edinburgh castle to mark the spot where, in the days of a dark and evil superstition, witches and warlocks were done to death by burning. The committee of the Outlook tower, Edinburgh, have not forgotten Professor Geddes' suggestion, and they have presented a tablet fountain which was unveiled on the Esplanade.

Photographs on Guard.

It is not improbable that in war times some form of photography will be used to detect the oncoming war eagle of a lying battleship, just as photos are made of dark and bright stars that cannot be detected by the eye and the most powerful telescope. Sentinels would look every few seconds at the photographic plates instead of at the sky.

sure that has been accorded to Mr. Wright's works. Nearly every one is familiar with the characters in "The Shepherd of the Hills." They are people out of the ordinary run of life, people in whose veins run good, rich, red blood. They do things in a natural human way; they love and hate with theatre-goers. Naturally the love between "Sammy Lane" and "Young Mat" is the pivot upon which the play revolves.

Messrs. Gaskill and MacVitty, the producers, have mounted the play in a sumptuous manner and given it a cast that promises to prove unique in the matter of types.

Deposit of Soda in Uganda.
A deposit of soda has been found at the terminus of the projected line of the Uganda railway. It is described by the discoverer as being a lake about ten miles long by two or three wide. VETERANS OF 13TH IN ANNUAL REUNION

FORTY-SECOND GATHERING OF THIRTEENTH WISCONSIN REGIMENT HELD HERE TODAY.

FIFTY - NINE PRESENT

Survivors Turn Out in Large Numbers and Enjoy Meeting at East Side Odd Fellows' Hall—Business Session.

Fifty-nine members of the Thirtieth Wisconsin Survivors' association, veterans of the Civil War, met in their forty-second annual reunion at the East Side Odd Fellows' hall today. The morning was given over to the registration of the comrades present and at noon dinner was served in the dining room of the hall by the members of the local W. R. C.

In spite of the fact that fourteen members of the regiment have been called by death since the reunion last year, the attendance today was very good and the veterans greeted each other with hearty handshakes and sincere cordiality.

The oldest member of the regiment present was Benjamin LaValley of Allens Grove, who is 88 years of age. He was born in 1824 and was the youngest man, being 68 years old, and W. A. Wyse of Edgerton has seen the most service of any of the regiment, having been an officer in the national guard until a very few years ago in addition to serving throughout the civil war. R. J. Whitteleton of Washington, D. C., came the longest distance of any of the men present at the reunion. He is at present employed in the department of agriculture where he has been since the time when Jeremiah Rusk was secretary.

All of the companies of the regiment were represented but Company K of which Philip Norcross of this city was captain had the largest number, an even dozen.

The meeting this afternoon was called to order by Capt. Norcross, president of the association, and the report of the secretary, Capt. W. E. Clarke of Milton, was heard. Capt. Norcross was unanimously re-elected to the position of president, and Capt. Clarke, who was elected permanent secretary at the first reunion, was continued in office.

The time and place of meeting next year and other business matters came before the meeting. It was not decided at a late hour whether the reunion would be continued tomorrow as was intended when the call was issued, but it was thought probable that the reunion would close today. Following is the list by companies of the members present:

Company A: J. L. T. Nichols, F. L. Roberts, A. E. Campbell, F. B. Child, H. C. Smith.

Company B: J. H. Martin, L. H. Martin, Clark Pierce.

Company C: B. L. Levalley, A. Schellinger, V. Boyce, J. W. Brunson, C. A. Wilson, C. Markle, J. Bauer, Riley Stuart.

Company D: W. A. Gould, J. H. West, Frank Howard.

Company K: Capt. Philip Norcross, W. A. Myse, A. Alder, N. A. Drake, Wm. Bowers, W. F. Clarke, O. C. Garthwaite, L. W. Webster, R. Green, Whitteleton, L. L. Bond, T. T. Green, E. O. Burdick.

BARDWELL WAS SCENE OF BAD FREIGHT WRECK TUESDAY.

Owing to a bad freight wreck at Bardwell Tuesday morning, at eleven o'clock, through Janesville-Chicago passenger trains on the St. Paul were forced to reach their destination by a round about way. The wreck was cleared up by six last night.

The passenger train leaving here at five-twenty yesterday, freighted a team of grey horses standing in the roadway just south of Avalon, and the animals ran along the train for some distance to a point where the engineer crossed the track and the engine halted to stop his train to prevent colliding with them. No one was in the rig and the last seen of the team they had freed themselves from the wagon and were galloping madly away.

OLD TIME RAILROAD MAN HERE—ON VISIT WITH OLD FRIENDS.

George W. Dutton of Tipton, Iowa, a veteran of Co. E. Fifth Wisconsin Volunteers, is in the city to renew old acquaintances and greet friends of bygone days. Mr. Dutton is seventy-six years of age and for forty years ran an engine on the Northwestern lines in Iowa. Mr. Dutton went out from Janesville to the civil war in Sixty-one. He is well preserved for his age and takes an active interest in affairs. He stated that he credited his good health to the fact that he never chewed a bit of tobacco but once, when it made him sick, never smoked for the same reason and never drank but a few glasses of ale in his life. He is here to greet those of his old comrades that remain and attend the reunion of the Thirtieth Infantry.

STATEMENT DENIED BY CITY ATTORNEY

W. H. Dougherty Gives Out Statement Denying That He Sought Advice Regarding Automobile Ordinance.

In a statement made today, City Attorney William H. Dougherty takes exception to the statement published in last evening's issue, which stated that he had been advised by the city attorney general that the local ordinance regulating automobile traffic were in conflict with the state law. Mr. Dougherty also emphatically denies that he made application to the attorney general because of a recent fatal accident. The article published last evening was taken from a Madison dispatch. Mr. Dougherty's statement, made this morning, was as follows:

"The opinion of the attorney general has not been solicited with reference to the automobile traffic as regulated by our city ordinances. At least no one in connection with the city government has made any such inquiry."

"I have never entertained any serious doubt about the validity of these laws and the mayor has instructed the police to make arrests under them. The state law provides for a maximum speed of fifteen miles in cities, but also takes account of the fact that there may be conditions existing in a different standard and in this latter field the city is free to act so long as it does not conflict with the positive provision of the state law."

"As I recall the ordinance in question, it establishes an eight mile district with six miles at all intersections therein. Its exact provisions can be found by consulting the city clerk. This ordinance was introduced some months ago during the revision and was made with full knowledge of the present state law and was not inspired by any recent accident, as was stated in yesterday's Milwaukee Sentinel."

In order that the particular provisions of the ordinance under discussion may be understood, the following extract from Chapter 6, of the revised ordinances of the city, on file with the city clerk, has been taken:

2. No person, under the age of fifteen years, shall drive any automobile or motorcycle upon any public street.

3. No person shall drive any automobile or motorcycle at a rate of speed exceeding eight miles an hour within that part of the city which is bounded as follows: On the east by the east line of Garfield avenue produced north to north line of Prospect avenue, on the south by the south line of Court street, Park Place and Pleasant street, on the north by the north line of Prospect avenue and West Bluff street, and on the west by the west line of Washington street.

4. Drivers of automobiles and motorcycles shall keep their respective vehicles on the right hand side of the roadway of every street upon which they may run the same; and when any such driver shall intend to turn a street corner with his vehicle, he shall reasonably slacken the speed to the same so that it shall not pass within the limits of the street intersection in which such street crossing is located at a rate of speed exceeding six miles an hour, and shall make such turn on the sides of the streets from the street corner turned, and before leaving any automobile to stand unattended shall stop the engine of the same.

5. Every automobile and motorcycle shall be provided with a suitable horn, whistle or bell; and the same shall be sounded before entering upon any street intersection, and when such automobile or motorcycle is at least three rods therefrom, and every driver of an automobile or motorcycle running upon any street, shall give pedestrians, crossing the same, priority in right of way, and slacken the speed of his automobile or motorcycle in so far as may be necessary to avoid a collision.

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

Mary Ellen Initiates Her Friend Into the Care of the House

DON'T you think," said Mary Ellen to her friend, Mrs. Markham, over the phone, "since you are going to take charge of the house while we are away, it would be well for you to come out the day before we go? Then we can tell you all about what there is to do. That will make it even much easier than finding it out for yourself. Send your trunk out tomorrow, and come to dinner. Then we'll have a nice evening talking things over. I'm so glad you are going to be here while we are away. We'll enjoy our trip more and I know you'll just have a lovely time."

The next day, when Mrs. Markham arrived, Mary Ellen was careful to have her own and Mr. Markham's trunks all packed and strapped and in the hall.

"See you are ready to depart," said Mrs. Markham. "Yes, all I have to do now is to turn the keys over to you. And you don't know how happy it makes me to leave my dear house in your hands."

Mrs. Markham looked gratified. "You may be sure I'll take the very best care possible of everything."

"Oh, I know you will. You are a far better housekeeper than I am," Mrs. Markham looked still more gratified. Just then the men arrived, and they all went out to dinner, which Mary Ellen had planned with special care.

"You'll just enjoy watering the flowers," she said to Mrs. Markham, as she passed her a plentiful helping of crisp, delicious salad. "Just attach the hose and give them a good soaking."

Mrs. Markham looked somewhat appalled. "You have no idea how delicious they smell, too, when you water them," hurried on Mary Ellen. "It almost seems as if they were giving out extra perfume as a thank offering for the water."

"And you've no idea what a good appetite it," she went on, turning to Mr. Markham, "until you've worked in the garden awhile. Why Mr. Markham is perfectly ravenous after he has hoed a row of corn."

Mr. Markham moved restlessly. "I don't know anything about gardening," he said.

"Oh, there's nothing to do now," Mary Ellen replied gayly, "but to pull out the weeds and hoe a bit. All the real hard work is done. And when I think of the perfectly delicious vegetables you are going to have, I get downright envious. I know we won't have near such good ones while we are away."

"Don't forget to oil the lawn mower once in a while," said Mary Ellen. "That's another thing that will make you feel fine and dandy," broke in Mary Ellen enthusiastically. "Running that lawn mower is just the pleasantest, easiest exercise imaginable. After a few days of it, you feel ten years younger."

Mr. Markham's countenance became somewhat glum. "I always pay Katie Thursday morning," went on Mary Ellen, turning to Mrs. Markham. "She likes her wages then, because that's her day off. So perhaps you might as well go on the same way."

Mrs. Markham looked apprehensive. "I do my own work at home," she began.

"Oh, but you have come out here for a rest. This is really a vacation for you, and Katie is such a jewel, suppose we go out in the yard and I'll show you the flowers. What a lovely time you will have while we are away. It makes me so happy to think of your being here."

And Mary Ellen rose and led the way into the yard.

SAVE THE BABIES

Pertinent Suggestions on the care of the little ones during the hot months.

GIVE THE BABY HIS RIGHTS.

"The great God sat in majestic silence upon His throne, viewing the Universe He had created. The soul of a babe came forth from the outer darkness and worshiped at His shrine."

"Thou wert a babe on earth and blind," said God.

"The soul assented."

"And how wert thou cared for?"

"They said I would ever be blind and useless, and they sent me to a place for imbeciles; and then after awhile, came release from earthly ills."

"And at God's behest there came a seraphim and went to earth an infant into the hearts of men and women an idea, and the thought fostered by self-sacrificing men and women grew into a nation wide movement for the 'Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality.' The Child Welfare Movement, and similar movements, all centered around the one idea: of educating the public and preserving the health of the nation."

Every child has a right to be well born—born of healthy, intelligent parents. His coming should be looked forward to as an event worthy of careful preparation. For isn't he to be the ruler of the household, and—who knows—someday, perhaps, a great personage to whom a nation will pay homage. If heredity has endowed him with a strong and vigorous constitution, it will stand a good deal of abuse and yet live to reach adult life. But he has a right to expect to reach adult life as good a condition as he started out. At best his life will be a perilous one. There are about 131 chances out of a thousand against his reaching his first year.

The odds against his reaching his second year are about 28 out of a thousand. And between his third and twentieth years the odds against him are only about four out of a thousand. He has a right to expect that his mother will nurse him as nature intended. If she is healthy, and capable, to refuse to do so is little less than murder. He has a right to be comfortably clothed, but not coddled. If he wants to have a good cry it is his privilege to do so without being molested; that is the only way he has of exercising his lungs. It is his privilege to sleep whenever, wherever and long as he pleases, without being disturbed. He may well feel that his rights are being imposed upon when his mother allows everybody, irrespective of their condition of health, age and previous condition of servitude, to kiss and fondle him.

Although she may wish to take him out for exhibition purposes, his mother must not take him nor allow him to be taken, to church, nor places of amusement, nor, in fact, to any place where there is a crowd; it is his privilege to be a "home body," and too, he is very susceptible to all kinds of disease germs.

He must not be denied the right to sleep in a bed of his own, in a well ventilated room; to have sunlight in his room during the day, and to have his morning outdoor "airing" whenever the weather permits. There may be times when his appetite isn't the best, and he doesn't feel like taking his six or eight square meals a day, and if his mother is so foolish as to try to force him to eat, it is not only his privilege but his duty to yell loud enough to disturb the nervous old maid who lives in the next block.

He ought to feel highly insulted if he is given mashed potato and gravy before he is a year old; it is his privilege to live on an exclusive milk diet until he is good and ready for something more substantial.

There may be a few more rights and privileges, but if these are observed he ought to grow into a healthy youngster.

DESSERTS.

Most of the sterner sex feel as if they had been deprived of their just dues and had not a perfect meal unless they have had some kind of a pudding or pie for dessert. "These trifles light as air" do not appeal to their taste. So even in warm weather, when an occasional cool day arrives, is a good time to prepare a heavier dessert.

Here is one to keep on hand and steam up for occasions:

French Fruit Pudding.—To a cup of finely chopped suet add a cup of molasses and a cup of sour milk, then two and three-fourths cups of flour sifted with a teaspoon and a half of soda, half a teaspoon of salt and cloves, a teaspoon of cinnamon. When well mixed add a cup and a fourth of raisins and three-fourths of a cup of currants. Steam four hours in a buttered mold.

Sterling Sauce.—Serve this sauce with the above pudding: Cream a half cup of butter, add a cup of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of vanilla and four tablespoonfuls of milk. Add the milk drop by drop to keep the mixture smooth.

Fig Pudding.—Chop a third of a pound of beef suet, add a half pound of chopped figs; cream the suet before adding the figs. Soak two and a half cups of bread crumbs in a half cup of milk, add two beaten eggs, a cup of sugar and three-fourths of a teaspoon of salt. Mix all together and steam three hours. Serve with egg sauce. Two beaten eggs, a cup of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of any fruit juice.

Maple Sauce for Ice Cream.—Put a pound of maple sugar, broken in bits, a cup of thin cream and two tablespoonfuls of butter in a granite saucepan; boil without stirring until it forms a soft, waxy ball, when dropped in cold water. Keep the pan in another of hot water until ready to serve; it will candy on the ice cream as it does on snow in sugaring time. If carefully dropped in small amounts it may be eaten with comfort.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.

AVOID MIXING ACID FRUITS WITH STARCHES.

"Sluggish digestion is often the result of the chemical action of one food on another, like meat and tea," says Dr. James Heggessey, who has given much attention to dietetics as a therapeutic agent. Digestion and elimination is largely a chemical process, the mechanical factor being largely contributory to the chemical, and every school boy knows that if he wants to get a definite result in a test tube he must combine certain elements and not attempt to perform more than one experiment at once in the same tube. The same principle applies in digestion, and hence the importance of avoiding incompatible mixtures.

Starch can not digest in an acid medium, therefore acid fruits should not be eaten with bread or potatoes. When the cereals or potatoes are thoroughly mixed with saliva in the mouth, there is time for proper digestion of the starch in the stomach before the gastric secretion, which is acid, begins to act. The excessive secretion of acid required for the digestion of flesh in the stomach is incompatible with the digestion of fruit or rice or potatoes, for example; so that the indiscriminate mixing of foods is a constant source of ill health, physical and mental degeneration and shortening of life. Prof. Metchnikoff overlooks this principle in his investigation of the cause of man's early decay, although all his cases mentioned in his "Prolongation of Life" lived on a practical monodiet, and although he suggests the intimate relation between early degeneration and cancer, he discovered no relation between diet and cancer.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

BEFORE AND AFTER TAKING.

TWO young people who were unusually reserved and undemonstrative during the six months of their engagement have developed into a surprisingly affectionate and demonstrative married couple. They have been married over two years and seem to grow steadily more affectionate in their manner towards each other.

A group of the wife's feminine friends were discussing this phenomenon. "Why, when they were engaged I thought John was the most undemonstrative lover I ever saw!" one of the girls contributed, "and I said, 'Goodness, if he's like this before marriage, what will he be afterwards?' But I never saw such a change in my life. He can hardly keep his hands off of Barbara even in public, and every time he looks at her you feel as if he were kissing her and you ought to go out of the room. That after they've been married two years!"

"And Barbara's just as bad, too," put in the wife's most intimate friend. "You know before she was married she was the strictest thing. She wouldn't even let John kiss her until they were actually engaged with a ring, though they had an understanding long before that. And now she's just as affectionate as he is. Isn't it queer?"

In the group of girls was one young married woman—a bride of six months. The intimate friend turned to her. "Well, Jane, what do you say?" she asked lightly. "Is it that way in your family, too?"

The unconscionable sigh which Jane gave as she answered was a keener commentary on her answer than she would probably have deliberately given. "Oh no," she said, rather bitterly, "nothing like that in our family. We did all our love-making before we were married."

There was a little silence while some of the girls recalled what an excessively demonstrative lover even in public Jane's had been, and how very different he was as a husband, and then someone opened another subject with nervous haste.

How many couples there are who could explain not only post-nuptial undemonstrativeness, but far graver troubles by that sentence, "We did all our love-making before we were married."

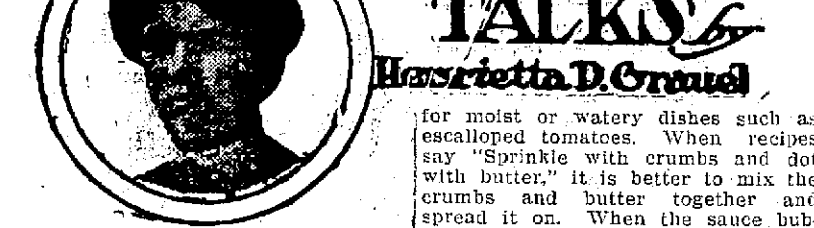

The question of how far love-making should go before marriage is something besides a moral question. It is also a question of expediency, as many girls who have married after ultra-fervid courtships can sadly testify.

Every undue liberty a girl permits before marriage she will bitterly rue sooner or later.

I know some girl who is even now committing such indiscretions as thinking, "But my case is different. I know my lover will never tire of me." Is it not a queer quirk of human nature that makes us all so sure that OUR cases are always different?

No, little girl, it's ten million to one that your case isn't different. And I wish with all my heart that you might hear the bitterness and the sigh that went with that bride's revelation. If you could, I'm sure you would never give yourself reason to say,

"We did all our love-making before we were married."

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Harrietta D. Crowl

For moist or watery dishes such as escalloped tomatoes. When recipes say "sprinkle with crumbs and dot with butter," it is better to mix the crumbs and butter together and spread it on. When the sauce bubbles up through the crumbs on top of an escalloped dish, it is done.

Corn starch or other starchy materials used for thickening should be mixed first with cold liquid and then poured slowly into the hot mixture and stirred until clear. Use a fork, instead of a spoon, when blending flour for thickening purposes.

All crushed or rolled cereals must be started to cook with salted briskly boiling water. Oatmeal, rice and whole grains should be put on the stove in cold water so the grains may swell before they start cooking.

An excellent way to cook rice is to wash it thoroughly in several waters and then put it in the inner bottle of the cereal cooker with three times the amount of water that you have rice, enough salt to season and a teaspoon of butter; cover and cook slowly for an hour.

Utilize every bit of meat left; ham for flavoring beans or other vegetables, beef for Irish stews and breakfast combinations. Dark meats are dressed with dark or brown sauces, white meats with cream or white sauce.

A sprinkling of onion salt or a few drops of onion juice should be added to made over meat dishes.

Skimming from soups, meat drippings and all bits of beef fat serve in the place of lard or other shortening, and drippings are better than water for basting meat.

The proper care of the range and intelligent use of it are great factors in successful cooking; if you do not understand the use of your stove's dampers or how to regulate the oven, ask any stove dealer for a free demonstration. If draughts are left open too long heat is lost before cooking begins.

The oven heat is more intense than the heat from the top of the stove, because it surrounds the food evenly. Under articles that are cooked on top of the stove seldom need intense heat and are often spoiled by too rapid cooking.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of twenty-one and engaged to a good-looking man of twenty-three. Some of my girl friends say if I marry him I will lose their friendship. They say I am under the control of a "soul kiss." Neither of our parents object to our marriage. I have not objected to my "intended" kissing after our engagement. VERY ANXIOUS.

The girls are silly and glib, are foolish to listen to them. Marry the man if you love him and your parents like him.

You have a perfect right to kiss when you're engaged, but don't give him a "soul kiss." I don't know what a "soul kiss" is and nobody else does. Any good, honest, human kiss is good enough for a good, honest, human girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I have a tan coat that has blue spots on it from a blue umbrella. How can I remove them? What will whiten brown arms and hands?

Soaking it in cold water might take out part of the stain. If not, try lemon juice, either alone or mixed with table salt. If this doesn't work, I'm afraid you will have to send the coat to a professional cleaner, or have it dyed some dark color.

To whiten the skin, grate one ounce fresh horseradish root, pour over it one pint cold buttermilk, let stand four hours, then apply.

I know only the directions of canning: sweet corn, but possibly field corn could be canned the same way. Cut corn from the cob, pack in glass jars, fill to the top with cold water, fasten lids on loosely, and set on wooden rack in boiler. Fill boiler with have got up and hustled. But now I just open one eye and mumble and turn over. He gets up and dresses, and hits his shins against things and mutters, and pretty soon I hear him out in the kitchen.

"Then I go to sleep and wake up about 6 o'clock, which is my regular time for getting up. I dress and sniff coffee in the air, and finally trail out to the kitchen. There I find that man of mine with a hunk of bread and jam and some cold meat, reading the morning newspaper while the coffee is boiling away on the stove."

"Sit down and have some breakfast," says he, with an inviting grin, and he pours me out some coffee as thick as mud—ugh!

"Not till I make some decent coffee," I tell him.

"Then I go about getting a decent breakfast. Meanwhile he slips off somewhere. When breakfast is ready I call him. No answer. Then I hunt him. And, will you believe it—I find him lying on the bed there, sleeping like baby! He'd forgotten all about being in a hurry."

"Now, if I wanted to get exasperated I could. And I could wear myself out trying to reform him. But I'm not going to do it. He's too old to change, and he's too much of a dear to be cross with. Besides, now that I understand him, I go along my own way, anyway, and we're both happy—which we wouldn't be if I tried to make him over according to conventional ideas. But you never know how queer a man can be till you marry him—never!"

"I took the trousers and soaked the spot in milk, and then I washed them and pressed them and they looked perfectly beautiful."

"Yesterday morning he put on the renovated gray suit and sallied forth. And I want to tell you that when he got home last evening there was another ink spot on those trousers, bigger than the first one."

When we were first married," she continued, "he used to get me all worked up with his ways. That was before I understood him. For instance, 'Now this morning for instance, he woke me up early in the night. 'Mary,' said he, 'I've got to get down town early today—very early. I think I'll have to go.'"

"Now, when I was married I'd cold water up to neck of jars, set on stove and bring to boiling point and boil four hours. Then fasten lids tightly. You can add salt or not when putting corn in jars. (2)—Probably you have been cooking the white or sugar beets. Get red beets and they will be red when they are cooked. (3)—I know nothing about her. (4)—I hope you are not foolish enough to believe in dreambooks."

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1)—I am fifteen years old, 5 ft. 1 in. tall and weigh 105 lbs. Am I too short and light for my age? (2)—What shall I do to take blackheads and pimples off my face? (3)—My hair is very dry and I must wet it with water every time I comb it. What shall I do for it? (4)—Do like the girls do—every night bathe your face and neck in hot water and scrub clean with a good toilet soap; rinse off all the soap, wipe dry, then massage the skin with cold cream and finally wipe it all off clean with a soft cloth.

Take exercises that will make you perspire well. Drink plenty of water and eat lots of fresh vegetables and fruits. Chew your food well—don't bolt it. Also, take a dose of Epsom salts once a week until your bowels are in good condition. I know it tastes horrid, but it's mighty good for you.

(3)—Wash your hair. When dry put a little vaseline on the tips of your fingers and rub it well into the scalp. Do this every time you wash your hair and it will soften the hair beautifully. Don't put water on your hair when you comb it. Brush it quite a while instead.

MILWAUKEE MAY GET HOME FOR ANIMALS

State Humane Society Names Committee, With E. B. Heimstreet At Head To Arrange Details.

At a recent meeting of the Wisconsin Humane society held at the general offices at Milwaukee, a resolution was adopted for the society to take immediate action toward establishing a home for unfortunate animals in Milwaukee. Mr. Phillips' suggestion for having an exhibit at the state fair next month met with the approval of all.

E. B. Heimstreet of Palmyra, a former resident of Janesville, one of the directors of the society, in bringing up the matter of a home, suggested that Milwaukee be the location, for he understood that there were many willing to help financially such an institution. He also offered a resolution requesting the use of the state fair grounds, when not in use, for one year. H. K. Curtis seconded the motion and was followed by John Le Feber, who gave a short talk. Miss Lenora Cawker said that it was something that she had looked forward to for years, and she had now in her kennel more than forty cats and dogs which had been brought in during the week. Short talks also were given by Woods, Plankinton, J. H. Kopmeier, J. F. Kraft, Frank Cannon, E. T. Fairchild, H. E. Phillips and Miss Marshall.

In an unanimous vote it was decided to name the proposed institution the Cawker Memorial Home for Animals, and the matter was placed in the hands of the following committee: E. B. Heimstreet, chairman, Frank Cannon, E. T. Fairchild, H. L. Phillips, and Miss Lenora Cawker.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

THE HUMAN WILL.

(By Howard L. Hann.)

When a will has been treated in this manner for a few times in succession, it will not attempt to drag the owner out of bed for a mild eye-opener in the form of three fingers in a large tin tub.

A stout will is one which never has to be massaged by inserting a home tobacco pipe in the coffee.

A flabby will is a popular variety which has to back up against electric bitters and the cubic cigarette in order to let go.

After a will has become halter broke and doesn't have to be driven with kicking straps, nobody will have to ask the owner where he stands on anything, from a mullet petition to women's rights.

One of the best specimens of case-hardened will ever produced in this country is that of "Bob" La Folle, who has been using it to annoy and disconcert some of our costliest citizens.

If it were not for the human will and the Australian bush, the plain people of this country would have about as much to say as a deaf mute with an impediment in his speech.

The man who invented the word "cant" was a lineal descendant of the invertebrate jellyfish and had his will extracted before he got into long pants.

If there was more will and less wind in congress, the ultimate consumer would stand almost as much show as the pork barrel.

The best kind of will power does not have to be propped up with horrible examples of death-bed scenes, but stands erect on its own feet and meets all comers.

WAUPACA CITIZENS PLAN HOME-COMING

Levi K. Alden Writes of Preparations for Annual Event at Northern City—Report on Crops. Wisconsin Veterans' Home, August 20, 1912.

To The Editor:—On the 6th of September, the farmers and citizens of Waupaca county will gather in the city of Waupaca for their annual potato bake and barbecue. This is an annual affair and is given by the potato growers, which practically includes every farmer in the county. The Merchants' Advance Association of the city of Waupaca has taken a hand in the "spuds" bake this year and has arranged for a three days' home-gathering of former citizens on the 5th, 6th and 7th, with the 6th as the banner day, on which day there will be a monster parade of farmers' turnouts, automobiles, motorcycles, etc., with prizes for the best turnouts. There will also be one or more flights of an aeroplane with other accompanying attractions. A steer will be roasted and coffee served with the baked potatoes. As everything is free, it goes without saying that there will be a record crowd, (if it does not rain).

The Citizens' Advancement Society of Waupaca is putting forth every effort to put the city on the map of live cities, and to judge from appearances, are meeting with flattering success.

The rains in this section have let up only for a day or two and the grain that has been out has been too wet to stack and in some cases too wet to shock in the fields. We had a couple of days last week without rain and a few of the smaller farmers threshed their rye and oats from the shocks but the yield was very small and the quality very poor. In some cases the straw was so rotten that it is unfit for feed, and with hay at the present price ($24 per ton, baled) this is quite an item.

New potatoes are selling now at 15 cents per peck, but I have talked with a number of growers who would be willing to sell this early crop for 45 cents per bushel and even less. So far the wet weather has not apparently injured the crop, which is very promising.

There has been almost too much wet for corn, and the result is that the stalks are growing taller without due regard to earing out. The stalks will make excellent fodder if the farmers get time to cut them before frost kills them, which in most cases is doubtful unless the corn is sacrificed to save the fodder.

WILL NOT USE VOTING MACHINES AT PRIMARY.

Announcement Received From Secretary of State Office by The County Clerk.

Voting machines will not be used in Janesville at the primary election, September 3, according to an announcement received by the county clerk from the office of the secretary of state. If the machines are used it will be impossible for the voters to get the full benefit of the second choice provision of the law and as this will be rather important in the nomination of several candidates in this county, it is not probable that the men concerned would allow the use of the machines without protest. Should the machines be used, it would require a new set of ballots and would involve considerable expense and work. The machines will not be used in any part of the state, it is understood, as a result of the secretary of state's order.

CHAPTER VII.

Snow-Bound.

While the world went about its affairs, attended to its business, read its papers, sent its telegrams and wrote its letters, the little group at Antelope was as completely cut off from it as though marooned on a strip of sand in an unknown sea. A second storm had followed the original one, and the end of the first week saw them snowed in deeper than ever. Antelope a trickle of roofs and smoke-stacks, in a white, crystal-clear wilderness, solemn in its stillness and loneliness as the primeval world.

The wires were down, the letter-carrier could not break his way in to them. They heard no news and received no mail. Confined in a group of rude buildings, crouched in a hollow of the Sierra's flank, they felt for the first time what it was to be outside that circle of busy activity in which their lives had heretofore passed. They were face to face with the nature they thought they had conquered and which now in its quiet grandeur awed them with a sense of their own small helplessness. Pressed upon by that enormous silent indifference, they drew nearer together, each individual unit gaining in importance from the contrasting immensity without, each character unconsciously declaring itself, emerging from acquired reticences and becoming bolder and more open.

They accepted their captivity in a spirit of gay good humor. The only two members of the party to whom it seemed irksome were Bill Cannon and the actor, both grudging against a confinement which kept them from their several spheres of action. The others abandoned themselves to a childish, almost fantastic enjoyment of a situation unique in their experience. It was soon found, it would never be repeated, it was an adventure charged with romance, accidental, unsought, as all true adventures are. The world was forgotten for these few days of imprisonment against the mountain's mighty heart. It did not exist for them. All that was real was their own little party, the white-washed passages and walls of Perley's, the dining-room with its board floor and homely fare, and the parlor at night with a semicircle of faces round the blazing logs.

On the afternoon of the sixth day Dominick made his first appearance down stairs. He achieved the descent with slow painfulness, hobbling between Perley and the doctor. The former's bathrobe had been cast aside for a dignified dark-brown dressing-gown, contributed to his wardrobe by Cannon, and which, cut to fit the burly proportions of the Bonanza King, hung around the long, tank form of the young man in enveloping folds. The parlor was empty, save for Miss Cannon sitting before the fire. Dominick had ceased to feel bashfulness and constraint in the presence of this girl, who had been pushed against his will if not against her own—into the position of his head attendant. The afternoon when they had sat together in his room seemed to have brushed away all his shyness and self-consciousness. He thought now that it would be difficult to retain either in intercourse with a being who was so candid, so spontaneous, so freshly natural. He found himself treating her as if she were a young boy with whom he had been placed on a sudden footing of careless, cheery intimacy. But her outward seeming—what she presented to the eye—was not in the least boyish. Her pale, opaque blondness, her fine, rich outlines, her softness of mien, were things as completely and gracefully feminine as the most epicurean admirer of women could have wished.

Now, at the sight of her bending over the fire, he experienced a sensation of pleasure which vaguely surprised him. He was hardly conscious that all the time he had been dressing and while he came down stairs he had been hoping that she would be there. He sent a quick glance ahead of him, saw her, and looked away. The pain of his feet was violent, and without again regarding her he knew that while he was gaining his chair and his attendants were settling him, she had not turned from her contemplation of the fire. He already knew her well enough to have a comfortable assurance of her invariable quick tact. It was not till the two men were leaving the room that she turned to him and said, as if resuming an interrupted conversation:

"Well, how do you like the parlor? Speak nicely of it for I feel as if it belonged to me."

"It's a first-rate parlor," he answered, looking about him. "Never saw a better one. Who's the gentleman with the wreath of wax flowers round his head?"

"That's Jim Granger. He comes from here, you know; and you mustn't laugh at those flowers, they came off his coffin."

"My father knew him," said the young man indifferently. "There were lots of queer stories about Jim Granger. He killed a man once up at Bodie. You've a fine fire here, haven't you?"

"Fine. It's never allowed to go out. What do you think I intend to do this afternoon? I've a plan for amusing and instructing you."

"What is it?" he said somewhat uneasily. "I don't feel in the least as if I wanted to be instructed."

She rose and moved to the center-table which was covered with an irregular scattering of books.

"Before you came down I was looking over these books. There are lots of them. Mrs. Perley says they've been accumulating for years. Mining men have left them and some of them have the names of people I know written in them. I thought perhaps you might like to read some of them."

Dominick sent a lazily disparaging glance over the books. He was not much of a reader at the best of times.

"What are they," he said, "novels?"

"Mostly." She sat down by the table and took up the volume nearest to her. "Here's 'Tale of Two Cities.' That's a fine one."

"I've read it. Yes, it's splendid. It's all about the French Revolution. The hero's like a real person and heroes in books hardly ever are, only I'd have liked him better if he'd stopped drinking and married his girl."

"I thought perhaps you might like me to read to you," she said, turning a tentative glance on him. "That's how I was going to amuse and instruct you."

"I'm sure it would be much more amusing and probably just as instructive if you talked to me."

"You've got to stay down here two hours. How could I talk and be amusing and instructive for two hours? You'd probably have a relapse and I'm quite sure the doctor'd find me in a dead faint on the hearth when he came in."

"All right. Let's try the books. Don't let's risk relapses and dead faints."

"Very well, then, that's understood. We'll go through the library now. I'll read the titles and you say if you like any of them."

"Suppose I don't?"

"You'll surely have a preference."

"All right. I'll try to go on."

"Here's 'Foul Play,' by Charles Reade. It seems to have been a good deal read. Some of the paragraphs are marked with a pencil."

"I think I've read it, but I'm not sure. It sounds like a murder story. No, let's pass on that."

"Well, here's 'Mrs. Skaggs' Husband,' by Bret Harte. Does that sound as if you'd like it?"

"Husbands! No. We don't want to read about a woman who has husbands. Pass on that, too."

"The next is very nicely bound and looks quite fresh and new, as if no body had read it much. It's called 'The Amazing Marriage.'"

"Oh, pass on that! I had it once and stuck in the third chapter. The last time I went East somebody gave it to me to read on the train. I read three chapters and I was more amazed than anybody in sight. The porter was a fresh coon and I gave it to him as my revenge. I'll bet it amazed him."

"You don't seem to have anything in the nature of a preference, so far. I wonder how this will suit you. 'Notre Dame de Paris,' by Victor Hugo."

"I don't understand French."

"It's English and it's quite worn out, as if it had been read over and over. Several of the pages are falling out."

"Oh, I've read that. I just remember. It's a rattling good story, too. About the hunchback and the stony girl who tells fortunes and has a pet goat. The priest, who's a villain, falls off the steeple and clings to a gutter by his finger nails with his enemy watching him. It's the finest kind of a story."

"What a pity that you've read it! Oh, here's one that's evidently been a great favorite. It's in paper and it's all thumbed and torn. Somebody's written across the top, 'Of all the damned fool people—'. Oh, I beg your pardon, I read it before I realized. The name is 'Wife in Name Only.' It doesn't seem the kind of title that makes you want to read the book, does it?"

"'Wife in Name Only!'" he gave a short laugh. "It certainly isn't the kind of name that would make me want to read a book."

"Nor me," said a deep voice behind them.

They both turned to see Buford, the actor, standing back of the table, his tall, angular figure silhouetted against the pale oblong of the uncurtained window. He was smiling suavely, but at the same time with a sort of uneasy, assumed assurance, which suggested that he was not unused to rebuffs.

"That, certainly," he said, "is not a name to recommend a book to any man—any man, that is, who has or ever had a wife."

He advanced into the circle of the freight, blandly beaming at the young man, who, leaning back in his chair, was eying him with surprised inquiry, never having seen him before. The look did not chill the friendly effusion of the actor who, approaching Dominick, said with the full, deep resonance of his remarkable voice:

"Congratulations, my dear sir, congratulations. Not alone on your recovery, but on the fact that you are here with us at all." He held out his large hand, the skin chapped and red with the cold, and the long fingers closed with a wrenching grip on Dominick's.

"We were not sure, when you arrived among us a few nights ago, that we would have the felicity of seeing you so soon up and around—in fact, we were doubtful whether we would ever see you up and around."

"Thanks, very kind of you. Oh, I'm all right now." Dominick pressed the hand in return and then, bending a little forward, sent a glance of imploring inquiry round the stranger's shoulder at Rose.

She caught the eye, read its behest, and presented the new-comer:

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 21, 1872.—"Tally One" for the Sack Company—Monday afternoon, as Mrs. Graves, who resides on Glen street, second ward, was getting her household goods in shape for moving, she lit a match, accidentally threw it down in close proximity to a straw bed and immediately afterwards went away. Colonel W. B. Britton happened to pass by in a few minutes and discovering smoke issuing from one of the windows, went in in time to see that the aforesaid match had set the straw bed on fire (which was consumed together with several articles) and saved the house. Colonel Britton is a member of the Sack company. Sabbath School Concert.—Prof. Wollett and Wilson are training about one hundred and fifty Sabbath School children for a concert they design giving on Tuesday, the 27th inst. This will be a novelty in the line of musical entertainments which will draw out all the fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers and friends of the little ones. At their rehearsal today the infantile warblers exhibited unusual proficiency. Brief Items.—The Bower City band will play in the first ward this evening. Lost.—Yesterday, a curl of black hair, between Madison and Main streets. If left at the Gazette office an owner will claim it. A republican meeting at Edgerton this evening, will be addressed by Hon. C. G. Williams and H. A. Patterson.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY. You are threatened with some trouble and it is well to look carefully on all sides. Avoid quarrels and be careful how you travel or start new enterprises. Those born today will be careless and unsettled and will not stick long at anything. They will have initiative ability but are inclined to lack individuality. If this is acquired they can go ahead with success.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON

I hired Jim Wiggleshaw to make a fine mud fence for me. Some people say that Jim's a fake, and with them I agree. He said he'd build as fine a fence as ever raised the dead, and I possessed so little sense, I let him go ahead. And now that fence is a disgrace, an eyesore to the town; it's crooked, sagging out of place, and almost falling down. It cannot stand the wind and flood, it crumbles in the gale; Jim made it of the cheapest mud that he

POOR ADVERTISING could find on the farm. And off with language full and free, that Jim crow fence I've cursed; but, much as it's annoying me, it's hurting Jim the worst. For every passer-by will pause and say: "This beats my time! Such work as old Jim Wiggleshaw's is nothing but a crime!" Old Jim's complaining more or less the long and sad year through; he's always loaded with distress—he can't get work to do. He finds it hard to make, while others many make, he's left around so many ad proclaiming him a fake. And every job you leave half done will bring you grief and tears; it is an ad, and it will run displayed for years and years.

Side-Stepping a Sneeze. Probably everybody has experienced the displeasure, if not actual pain, which comes from missing a sneeze. There is an easy way out of this if one happens to be out of doors at the time and the weather is clear. Just glance at the sun. There is something about the brightness of it that suppresses the missing irritation, or whatever it is that is needed, and nine times out of ten if the sneeze has not got too far away it will come back.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end. There are many number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses. Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience. But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns. The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

How Do The Readers of This Page Find a Dressmaker?
